

Choosing accommodation

If you decide to spend your holiday in the Liberec Region, you have the possibility of choosing from a wide range of accommodation options – from private accommodation, mountain chalets, to family guest houses and four-star hotels.

One criterion when choosing accommodation is to seek hotels of internationally recognised quality (hotel stars), which are awarded by the Czech Association of hotels and restaurants (under certified hotel, hotel suite, motel, boat hotel). In addition, the Czech Republic, Germany, Hungary and Austria have agreed on a common classification system under the name “Hotelstars Union”, valid since 2010.

Another criterion for choosing accommodation is also the Regional certification of accommodation run by the Liberec Region, which even classifies accommodation capacity, which the Association of hotels and restaurants does not have included in its database. The Regional certification is rated locally and includes not only technical criteria but also the overall impression of what the accommodation has to offer from the perspective of the type of guest. In practice this means that quality service is not only found in four star hotels but also in small family guest houses. The aim of this certification is to facilitate the real provision of quality services even in small accommodation capacities. For easy orientation in the classification of the quality of service, a colour coded system is used corresponding to categories (Bronze, Silver, Gold, Diamond, Top Diamond).

In addition to the more classical accommodation capacities, such as hotels, hotel suites, motels and guesthouses, you can also find a range of hiking chalets, private accommodation, mountain chalets and cottages or camp sites in the Liberec Region. If you are after something a little bit different, you can spend a weekend in the television transmitter on top of mount Ještěd, which also serves as a hotel. It all depends on where and how you want to spend your holiday.

When choosing from the range of accommodation options you can seek advice from a number of information centres, over 40 in total, where you can get help with choosing the most suitable accommodation for your particular holiday.
